

WHERE, OH WHERE, ARE THE BALL PLAYERS OF YESTERDAY?

Alas for batsmen, pair by pair. The wind has blown them all away. In vain we seek them here and there—Where are the ball tossers of yesterday?

What has become of the men who a few years ago electrified the country with their ball playing? Is often asked. Well, here's what some of them are doing:

John M. Ward, once captain of the old New York Giants, is a prominent New York lawyer and golfer. He has handled and won some famous cases at the bar.

Jack Glasscock, once a grand short-field player, is doing carpenter work at Wheeling, W. Va.

Red Ebert, the once-upon-a-time twirler of fame, is umpiring in the Southern League and dodging yellow fever germs.

Harry Stovey, who stole 120 bases in one season, is plying a beat in uniform and swinging a club instead of a ball bat.

Clarence (Cupid) Childs, who in '92 led Dan Bruthers as the leading batsman in the National 12-club league, having a hard time holding down a berth in the New York state league.

Dan Bruthers, by the way, manages the Poughkeepsie Club.

Billy Hamilton is manager of the Harrisburg Outlaw league team.

Buck Ewing is leading the simple life in Cincinnati.

Tom Burns, once star outfielder of the Brooklyn team, is in business in the city of churches.

Billy Joyce, of the same team, is in business in St. Louis.

Sam Thompson, one of the original Big Four, is in business in Detroit.

Hugh Duffy is managing the Phillies and promises to rank as high in this role as he did when playing.

Jack Stivets of Boston is driving a brewery wagon in a Pennsylvania oil country.

Mike Tiernan, greatest of old time sluggers, has a buffet in an eastern city.

Orator O'Rourke, a famous league catcher and fielder, is manager of the Bridgeport, Conn., team, and the moving spirit of the organization.

Van Halgren is running the Oakland, Cal., team.

Jack Doyle, the famous Baltimore infielder, is putting up a good game at first for Toledo.

Biddy McPhee is looking after his mining interests and resides in Cincinnati.

Billy Hallman plays with Savannah during the summer and does minstrel stunts when the snow flies.

Sam Dunan plays with Memphis and leads the team with the willow.

Heiman Long, once the greatest of shortstops, is running the Des Moines team.

Roger Connor is well fixed financially and is playing a good game with Waterbury, Conn.

"Dummy" Hoy is taking life quietly at Cincinnati. He owns a farm.

Bob Carothers is umpiring in the Western league.

And there are numerous others whose whereabouts and station in life are unknown to the writer.

BASE BALL

CLIFTON, 11.
TRINIDAD, 4.

Though Trinidad triumphed over Albuquerque on Monday, they were so far outclassed by Clifton in yesterday's afternoon game that a comparison would mean a great contrast. It was a shame for Clifton to take the money. They started in with three runs in the second inning, and by pegging one or two at the occasion demanded, handed up at the end of the ninth with eleven to the good, and clear out of breath from running bases. The men of the hoe on the side of the Colorado were out of breath, too, but they were spent from chasing hits. Clifton ripped off five the first half of the ninth, and it was a clear case of "shell" on the part of Lockhard. He was about all in.

On the other hand, Trinidad had but one look in the whole nine innings. With two men out in the eighth, Clark reached the initial sack on an erratic throw of Quigley. Bell slammed it out for a base, and then got a sack on an error of Quigley at second.

Clark scored and Bell followed him in on a single by Rounds. Ott tore out another into center, scoring both Owen and Rounds. The side was retired by Bennett hitting an easy one to first base. With the exception of this let down, Merkle had the Trinidad Blues going throughout the game, and the band played "Ain't That a Shame," as the last man went out.
